C. Facility Description AND Program Description

The Northwest Arkansas Work Release Center (NWAARC) is a minimum-security facility located at 600 West Sunset Avenue in Springdale Arkansas. The main building, originally constructed as the National Guard Armory, is of a single-story brick structure. Two additional buildings are also located on facility grounds used for maintenance and facility storage. Totally remodeled, the facility has three points of egress. The main administrative entrance, which services all visitors and contractors, the side entrance, which serves as the staff entrance, and an additional side entrance which serves as the inmate entrance. All points of egress are secured and closely monitored via camera viewing by the Control Center staff. The Control Center is centrally located inside the front door of the administrative entrance and is manned 24/7. All contractors and visitors entering the front administrative entrance must sign in and out. The side entrance accessing inmate entrance consists of prisoner personal pat down searches and personal property searches conducted by staff. An additional building was just completed construction but is not yet occupied. When operational, it will house a Commissary, additional storage, and the laundry room.

NWAARC maintains 42 cameras that are monitored from three separate locations simultaneously. The back side of the control center faces an open bay dormitory styled housing unit where the inmates reside. There is a large bathroom on the side of the housing unit that has five toilets, four urinals, seven wash basins, and 12 showers. There are two additional detached metal buildings, one which serves as a maintenance shed and one which serves as a large outside food storage unit.

While this is mainly a work release center for inmates returning to the community, local providers and counselors assist with voluntary group counseling sessions.

It is the mission of the NAWRC to teach inmates work ethics as many have never had a steady job. The facility will teach them the necessity of going to work every day, on time and how to conduct themselves on the job so they are able to maintain steady employment.

They also teach inmates fiscal responsibility since many inmates don't know the importance of meeting their financial obligations. While on the work release program, they must pay for their upkeep. They also see that they assist in the support of their families. They encourage inmates to save money, which will help them get a new start once they are released from incarceration.

The work release program provides a service to the community which will foster a positive awareness in relations to the Arkansas Department of Corrections.

Security:

Northwest Arkansas Work Release Center (NWAARC)'s perimeter is surrounded by a 4' wrought iron scenic fence with an encased rolling gate for authorized vehicle parking. There are four oversized halogen light fixtures adjacent to each side of the facility which provides adequate lighting during hours of darkness.

NWAARC has three points of egress into the facility. The front entrance of the Administrative Building serves as the facilities main entrance for visitors and contractors. The side entrance of the administrative building serves as the staff and vehicle/truck delivery entrance. There is an additional side entrance adjacent to the back section of the building which serves as the entrance for NWAARC inmates entering and exiting the facility. There are three vans and one vehicle assigned to NWAARC for transportation purposes.

There are 42 cameras (27 interior/15 exterior) located throughout the facility. These cameras provide 24/7 security coverage and are monitored by way of three separate locations within the facility, the Central Control room, the Lieutenant's office and the Center Supervisor's office. Visitors and contractors seeking access to the administrative building's front entrance must push a button and once inside sign into the Visitors logbook to request authorized entrance. NWAARC inmates gain access to enter and exit the facility through a side entrance that is monitored and controlled by assigned Correctional officers. Inmate sign/out processing are conducted with the concluding pat and personal property searches are conducted on each inmate. All Correctional officers wear uniforms and carry handheld radios. Officers who transport inmates to and from work maintain contact with radios in the vehicles. Handheld metal detector is used to screen on all entrants entering into the facility. Identification is checked on everyone entering the building.

NWAARC has a small armory that is secured and in order. Only designated staff have access to this area. Weapons and ammunition, restraints, and equipment were found properly inventoried. Chemical agents were also found in order and properly inventoried. All corresponding SDS sheets were in order and easily accessible. Key and tool control is monitored appropriately. Keys are logged in and out by way of the "chit" coded key rings system. Master keys are accessed to appropriate staff only. Tools were found properly inventoried, labeled and stored in secured location. Inmate head counts are performed three times on each shift. Unofficial headcounts are also conducted throughout the day.

Security staff include: one - Captain, one - Lieutenant, four - Sergeants, and 17- Correctional Officers.

Environmental Conditions:

The facility is well maintained, and temperature were within the comfort levels. Hot and cold running water temperatures were appropriate. Sound and lighting levels exceeded the standard requirements. The ratio of showers, washbasins and toilets to inmates are in compliance with state statutes and ACA standard guidelines.

The facility was not crowded. The open bay dormitory style design limits privacy however each inmate has a space for their personal items and clothing. The furniture in the living area was clean and comfortable. The facility has a preventative maintenance program that is ongoing. In the event the facility loses power a fully serviced emergency generator is in place.

Sanitation:

The sanitation and hygiene level throughout the facility was well maintained. Daily and weekly sanitation inspections are conducted by unit staff. Housekeeping plans were reviewed, and the audit team observed inmates cleaning in various areas of the facility. The Inmate bathroom and shower areas were clean. Inmates were found to be clean, beds were made, property stored, and shoes properly placed. Housing unit furnishings were found to be clean and in good order.

NWAWRC uses cleaning supplies provided by prison industries that are diluted on site and used by inmates when cleaning. All cleaning supplies are maintained in the Central Control Storage room. Chemical inventories, Safety Data Sheets and safety equipment (goggles and gloves) were found to be organized, properly stored, and inventoried. Eyewash stations were found operational and strategically located throughout the facility.

Institutional grounds were well maintained and groomed with no evidence of dumping or improper material disposal. A contract is in place for monthly pest control and bio-hazard waste services. The facility has a maintenance plan that is ongoing.

Fire Safety:

The main building is equipped with a centralized sprinkler system. Additional fire safety equipment throughout the facility consists of audible / strobe indicators, four manual pull stations, ten fire extinguishers, and smoke detectors strategically located throughout facility. The Enunciator / Alarm control panel is located in the Central Control office.

The Springdale Fire Department is located across the street from the facility with an emergency response of two minutes. Facility fire evacuation routes are clearly and strategically posted. Fire safety plans and evacuation drills are properly conducted and reviewed by fire safety authorities. The facility conducts a minimum of four drills per shift per quarter. All staff were knowledgeable and familiar with the proper procedures for fire drills and evacuation routes. Means of egress were properly identified and unobstructed. The kitchen has appropriately maintained and inspected fire suppression system. The date of the last Fire / Safety inspection conducted by the State Fire Inspector was July 2018.

All flammable materials are stored in a flammable locker in the maintenance shed which is a separate building from where inmates are housed. Flammables / hazardous materials were found inventoried and properly accounted for. Safety Data Sheets and proper protective equipment were available and utilized by responsible staff and offenders. Cleaning agents issued to housing units and other facility areas are properly diluted to levels use by both staff and inmates. Eyewash stations were present at appropriate locations and food to be in good working order. First aid kits and AEDs were strategically located in the facility.

Food Service

NWAWRC's food service department operates under the supervision of the one Food Service Supervisor, three food service workers. Forty six inmates are assigned to work in the food service area. All inmates working in the food service area receive medical clearance and are provided hands on safety training. All food service staff are certified in ServSafe procedures.

NWAWRC provides inmates three hot meals per day. NWAWRC's daily cost of an inmate meal per day is $2.00. A certified dietitian reviews and approves the Master Menu system. Both general and special diet menus have a four-week rotating cycle. Therapeutic and religious diets are provided upon request and administrative approval. Seating in the dining hall is designed for a maximum of 24 inmates per seating period.

Sanitation throughout the food service area was good. All meals were prepared in a secured environment. Cleaning supplies were found to be organized, properly stored, and inventoried. Kitchen tools and equipment were well maintained. Tools are shadow boarded and signed out to the workers using the chit system. Restroom facilities for both inmates and staff were near all workstations. Hood suppression inspections are conducted every six months. The last hood suppression inspection was conducted in March of 2022.

The audit team sampled a noon meal of baked chicken, pinto beans, mixed vegetables, rice, pears, and homemade bread. The food was well seasoned, tasted good and was substantial in quantity.

The medical area is in a multi - service building. There is one exam room that is shared in the same space as the facility lab. Although very close in proximity, this area can be closed off enabling privacy for inmates during encounters. The area was clean, well-lit, and well equipped.

There are two sick calls daily one morning and one evening. For sick call services, an inmate will initiate the encounter by completing a sick call request form via correspondence or “kiosk” located in the visiting area. The paper correspondence is placed in a secure box located outside of the medical area and are picked up daily by the nurse. The forms are triaged, and the inmate is usually seen the very next day. Inmate interviews confirmed that medical requests are processed promptly within a 24-hour period. A co-pay of $3.00 is assessed for inmate-initiated requests.

Medications are dispensed to the inmates on medication cards that they keep on their person and are checked periodically for accuracy.

Upon arrival medical staff provide orientation and screening. At the time of this audit the facility had no insulate dependent inmates. There are approximately 32 chronic care inmates currently enrolled at this facility. NAWARC also serves as a satellite chronic care clinic for NAWARC and county jail inmates. These inmates are seen every 3 - 6 months. Inmates housed at the county jail are transported to NAWARC for services during routine chronic care hours.

There are no onsite dental services provided at NAWARC. Inmates needing service are temporarily transported to the offsite correctional dental clinic - North Central Unit. There are no mental health services provided at this facility. Inmates requiring services are transferred to an appropriate facility. NAWARC 's laboratory technician obtains lab specimens monthly. Results are sent to the facility electronically as well as faxed. Abnormal results are called immediately to the physician.

All staff are trained in first aid, CPR, and in using the AED's. There is one AED located in the control room. There are six first aid kits strategically located throughout the facility. Medical staff are responsible for the proper inventory of all first aid kits.

All were checked and found to be in properly stocked and in order. Medical sharps, tools, and equipment were found to be properly labeled, inventoried, and accounted for.

Staff were questioned regarding emergency responses, and all were very aware of their role in emergency situations. Drills are conducted regularly on all shifts in accordance with local procedures.

When the inmates first arrive at the facility, they are assigned inmate maintenance positions working to fulfill the agreement with the city in several local agencies such as: the city parks, the airport, the Springdale Police Department and City Hall.

This process allows the staff to assess the inmates work performance to better assist them in placing them with the proper employer. On the first date of this audit there were 16 of these porter positions assigned throughout the city.

In addition, there are a total of seven private companies that currently work in collaboration with NAWARC employing inmates housed at the facility.
